- Dear friends,
- ◆ I'm writing this letter to you (sitting /sat) in the armchair and (thinking / thought) about our meeting. Perhaps, you are (surprising / surprised) at this strange letter from the person born in the very heart of England. (Spending /spent) my childhood in the largest industrial part of the country, I used to visit Manchester, Sheffield and Birmingham.
- ◆ By the way, my friends -"The Beatles", (living /lived) in Liverpool send their best wishes to you. We hope, you'll be (exciting /excited) to make a lovely trip to our region (situating /situated) rather far from London. My birthplace, a small provincial town (covering /covered) with roses and (situating /situated) on the small river, attracts many tourists every year especially on the 23d of April, as on this day everybody takes part in a very great ceremony (devoting /devoted) to my birthday and (celebrating /celebrated) in my native place. I hope, you also enjoy reading sonnets, tragedies and comedies (writing / written) by me many years ago.
- ◆ (Being /been) in Oxford, you'll visit its famous university (knowing /known) all over the world. Welcome to our region, where you'll admire unusual trees and flowers (growing /grown) in our forests and meadows, attractive gardens (dividing / divided) with hedges and plays (staging /staged) in our theatres. I'm sure, you'll have a good time (visiting /visited) museums, (walking /walked) in our green parks and (feeding /fed) ducks and swans in the canal of my town.
- ◆ With best wishes,
