

A research team of Oxford University made a report on the health and mortality of vegetarians and meat-eaters. In contrast to meat-eaters vegetarians have a 39 per cent lower risk on dying from cancer. They also found that the risk of heart disease was 24 per cent lower in vegetarians and 57 per cent lower in vegans than in regular meat-eaters.